

270 Think fast

Stand in a circle of four or five people. Call someone's name and throw a ball towards that person. Does he or she react in time to catch it? Ask that person to do the same to another person in the circle, and so on. What happens if you do it faster and faster?

This game tests how quickly people react to hearing their names. This is not a reflex – it needs a moment's thought, so it's a reaction. Some people will react quickly and catch the ball easily, while others will be slower and might not catch it at all.
